Start

From the top of the gondola Anzère, take the direction Pas de Maimbré. After passing ladders, the path runs along the western faces of Chamossaire, La Motte and Sex Rouge until La Selle, which is the highest point of the route. Go down towards the Audannes hut, paying attention to the signs (cairns, indicator stakes) if there are still snowfields covering the path. The descent from the Audannes hut is difficult by the Andean way and spectacular if you follow the path of driving that crosses the western face of the Pointe d'Hérémente. For this last variant, there is absolutely no need to have the slightest suspicion regarding the control of vertigo. Whatever the chosen variant, the paths come together. Always follow the direction Serin, Anzère. When you join the Grillesses, follow the Bisse de Sion rather than the road.

Practical information

The hut of Audannes is the perfect place for the lunch break..
